

A Christmas Story
By
Niamh Daly

One snowy Christmas evening a pink, purple and orange alien was looking at a book about Christmas. It said that Christmas is about loving and caring. Then he set off to planet Earth. A small girl was looking out of her window and got such a fright because he was pink, purple and orange and was naked. Then he landed. He went to the Square. He got such a shock because two ladies were fighting over the last bottle of perfume. Also people were fighting over a fine piece of ham. Then he heard people complaining and this is what they said 'this line is so long'. So he went to some houses to search for the loving and caring that he read about. So he looked in the window and saw a lady screaming at a chicken because it would not cook properly. Then he saw two boys fighting over a toy and the dad was screaming at the T.V because of Manchester United, the team he was supporting. So he went to see another family. Finally he found the right family. They were helping each other. Also they were all excited to go to the Civic Theatre!